The rationale for regulating financial accounting practice

- Arguments for regulation:
- 2. Market for information are not efficient. Without regulation a sub-optimal amount of information will be produced.
- 3. Proponents of free-market (anti-regulation) say that capital market on an average is efficient. Such 'on average' arguments ignore the rights of individual investors. People can loose their savings in an unregulated market.
- 4. Parties with limited power will generally be unable to secure information about the organization.
- 5. Investors need protection from fraudulent organizations that may produce misleading information.
- 6. Regulation emphasizes on uniformity and thus on comparability.
